You are to implement your knowledge of satire and the techniques of satire to write a creative piece of your own. Select a topic you feel passionate about, pinpoint some issue/problem found in society or humanity that you wish to highlight and ultimately correct. Remember the purpose of satire is to make readers feel critical of themselves, of their other fellow human beings, or of their society. Don’t be afraid to be very creative in devising two levels to your satire: the literal level (what you’re saying) and the symbolic level (what you are truly trying to convey through what you’re saying).

Remember there are many types of satire:

You can create a narrative story (like Gulliver)

You can create a parody (like Rape of the Lock)

You can create an informative pamphlet (like A Modest Proposal)

Don’t hesitate to come to me with ideas, questions or problems.
